

Episode #09 – Burying Mandarins and Stinky Teenagers

In this episode we interview two amazing mature age business owners who have intriguing back-stories to their business ideas.

Helen Andrew started Spare Harvest because she hated burying a crop of mandarins from the backyard of her home.

Carolyn Palliardi didn't want her teen son to be spraying smelly chemical based deodorants around the house!

Between them, they have some great advice and a few war stories for any aspiring mature age business owner. Proving that even the strangest problem or market gap can be turned into a business if you do your homework, have a passion, and are willing to have a crack.

Connecting with Carolyn at 808 Dude:

Visit them at their Website

<https://www.808dude.com>

Or Connect with Carolyn on social media here:

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/carolynpalliardi/>

Connecting with Helen at Spare Harvest

If anyone wants to connect with me, they can contact me at

helen@spareharvest.com

Visit us at Website:

<https://www.spareharvest.com/>

or download the app at:

<https://itunes.apple.com/au/app/spare-harvest/id1101571985>

<https://play.google.com/store/apps/details?id=com.spareharvest.app>

Here are our social media links:

<https://www.facebook.com/SpareHarvest/>

<https://twitter.com/spareharvest>

<https://www.instagram.com/spareharvest/>

For more information on your host Hunter Leonard or Silver & Wise:

Hunter Leonard - <https://www.linkedin.com/in/hunter-leonard/>

Silver & Wise www.silverandwise.com.au

